A lot of people in Hancock County will be moving soon, without even leaving home.

While some tempers flared at a public hearing on redistricting last week, most of the controversy revolved around the Hancock County Justice Court

Sewage problems could halt expansion

Woes began in 1960s, but officials working to improve situation

Editor's note: The following is the first installment of a multi-part series examining the ongoing water, wastewater and sewage problems that affect Hancock County and its communities.

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER

Just a couple of years ago, the Department of Environmental Quality called a meeting with local leaders to discuss the topic of county wide wastewater treatment. Approaching the 21st century, much of Hancock County was still not sewered, and growth was making it evident that the current system of individual septic treatment systems were not going to be acceptable for much of the county.

Out of that meeting and others came an agreement which would make Southern Regional Wastewater Management District the central authority for wastewater treatment in the county. Representatives from the county's various sewer and water districts

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

Our law enforcement officers have a tough job

Many of us take for granted the work our law enforcement officers do and the hazards they face.

Take for instance on Tuesday, Waveland Police Officer Johnny Bordages, along with a Biloxi police officer were wounded while working with the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) in serving a warrant in rural Harrison County with other drug enforcement agents.

Officer Bordages has been on loan for the past two years from the Waveland Police Department with the DEA.

The officers were apparently wounded by some type of a booby trap set up with a shotgun at the home and were struck in the legs.

Law enforcement officers never know what they are going to face in doing their duty. Their jobs are very hazardous.

We all need to remember the dangerous job our dedicated law enforcement officers perform and respect them for protecting the general public.

The big July 4th weekend is almost over with today being the final 2002 celebration of the annual Our Lady of the Gulf Crab Festival and the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo.

There is still some very good food and entertainment at the OLG Fest which raps up tonight.

Fishermen will be eager to find out if they end up with the big one this evening as the fishing rodeo's scales close.

There should be lots of fish on display at the rodeo headquarters today at the Rice Pavilion in Gulfport.

Traffic has been heavy and should also be today, so if you travel, please use extreme caution.

The number of persons viewing the annual Casino Magic's fireworks display increases each year.

The river and area canals were loaded with boats of all sizes with viewers, and I even noted several small airplanes circling the area Wednesday night.

Beach Boulevard in the Cedar Point area was covered with spectators, not to mention the many at the Magic itself.

I hope everyone really enjoyed the fireworks display.

Thursday morning I took a ride down North Beach in Bay St. Louis and was amazed at the amount of litter along the seawall and roadway.

Bay St. Louis has barrels for folks to use, but in many cases the litter was everywhere but in the barrels.

Hancock Supervisor Lisa Coward, who is one among those who take pride in our community being litter free, who was doing her exercise walk Thursday and collecting some of the litter with her exercise friend, told me there was so much litter about that she just hated to look at it.

Both the county and city do their best to keep our beach clean, and it was really spotless for the long 4th holiday, but made a radical change in one night.

I cannot see why people cannot collect their trash and place it in a container provided, or bag it and take it home.

We have to break ourselves of the habit of just throwing litter down wherever it may fall.

Those few who enjoy public areas, pick up their trash and dispose of it properly, thank you very much. Hopefully your good deeds will rub off on those who litter.

Like it or not, U.S. is a nation 'under God'

For decades the political left have failed to get their very unpopular, anti-religious agenda passed by your elected representatives in Congress, so instead they have worked to circumvent the majority of Americans and enact that agenda via the court system and judge-made law.

For any of you who still doubt liberals' hostility toward religion, you need not look any further than this week's ruling by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in California.

As most of you know by now, this court has actually declared that the Pledge of Allegiance is unconstitutional, specifically the part about "one nation under God."

This action vividly depicts the disconnect

From the Senate

by U.S. Sen.
Trent Lott

between mainstream Americans and far left, elitist judges, and it underscores the importance of the judicial confirmation process, which has been stalled by the loony left's water carriers in the Senate.

This ruling was immediately and almost universally condemned by the American people. Not for a minute do I think this silly and stupid ruling will stand.

It will either be overturned by a higher and more sober court, or the American people, through their representatives in Congress, will take whatever steps are necessary to set this straight.

However, we should not even be having this discussion. Our founding fathers made it crystal clear — America's courts were never intended to be a place where law is made, but only a place where the laws made by the people's representatives are interpreted.

Were they alive today, I believe the wise and mostly very religious men who created our Republic would be appalled by this ruling. These revolutionary men were the first to assert that our liberty is "endowed" by our "Creator."

They said freedom was a God-intended right, so how could our nation not be 'under' God? Like many of us, they would despise these feeble attempts by a small minority of atheists to do nothing short of eradicating all references to God in public places.

If anything, these ridiculous efforts are an infringement

Response to Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals' Pledge of Allegiance decision

On June 26 there were headlines in the media regarding the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision in San Francisco that the Pledge of Allegiance was unconstitutional due to the phrase "under God."

The court stated that the phrase amounts to a government establishment of religion, which would violate the First Amendment to the Constitution and the doctrine of separation between church and state.

When the decision was made it only stood for nine states out west and the territories of Guam and the Northern Mariana Islands.

No other states or territories are bound by the decisions of that court. Due to public pressure the judge who wrote the decision has issued a stay on his ruling, which means that the decision will not be effective until the case is appealed. Still, this decision is an outrage and I feel it should be addressed.

I completely support the Pledge of Allegiance.

I believe every word of the pledge is an appropriate and accurate representation of the philosophy, ideals, and principles that have made this country a success.

The phrase "under God" should not be excluded from the pledge that every American recites when they mean to vow their allegiance to the United States and all the principles that make it great. Nor do I believe that the phrase makes the pledge unconstitutional.

The phrase does not specify a religion of any kind and in no way implies that a person reciting it is pledging their allegiance to any religion.

The Pledge clearly is one that is made to the United States and the philosophies to which our country adheres and does not establish a national religion, nor prohibits anyone from practicing the religion of their choice.

When I was sworn in to serve the people of South Mississippi 13 years ago I took an oath that ended with, "So help me God." That day I stood on the House floor and said how proud I was to be a member of a body, and a citizen of a nation, that was not afraid to say, "In God We Trust."

I still feel that pride. I am confident that the good people of this nation will have their way, and the U.S. will always be "one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

I believe that the phrase, which was added in 1954, was included in our pledge because the people and leaders of America understood that no matter how powerful we become, no matter what trials and tragedies we may endure, the fate of our nation ultimately lies in a higher power.

As we all know, the views of people in some western states are not always consistent with those of the rest of the country. No one should interpret this ruling as the new policy of the ment on the very free speech and religious freedom which so many on the left claim to protect more than anyone.

Every day in the U.S. Senate, the U.S. Senate's Chaplain - a great and exemplary man of God - leads the U.S. Senate in prayer.

Just as the U.S. Supreme Court has recognized that elected officials may invoke God's blessing on their work, our children should be allowed to invoke God's blessing on our country.

Indeed, with our nation at war with terrorists, all Americans of every religion need God's guidance and blessing today more than at any point in our lifetimes.

Moreover, time and time again American taxpayers of all faiths have been forced to fund so-called "art" which depicts religious symbols in inappropriate ways which are clearly offensive not only to us religious men and women who value these symbols, but also to many secular people who still have that indispensable American trait called common sense.

Yet, the judges are often the first on the line to protect this type of demented and anti-religious speech. Frankly, like most of you, I am getting increasingly tired of so called "free" speech that seems to go only one way - hard left.

General references to God in The Pledge, on money, atop public buildings, and in public arenas clearly do not promote any particular religion, and they do absolutely no harm to anyone within earshot.

Some liberals are always telling religious people who may object to the content of a television show, or magazine to "turn it off" or "don't look at it," if we do not like it. Well, maybe it is time they took their own advice.

Maybe those who do not like the words "under God" should just not say them, or stick in some earplugs to protect them from the word "God."

Meanwhile, the majority of us Americans who acknowledge the Almighty, will go right ahead and mention a God who we believe made Heaven, made Earth, made mankind and made America a great nation.

Finally, this absurd ruling highlights the urgency for the Senate to act on President's Bush's nominees for current judicial vacancies.

Many of us watched with indignation as Judge Charles Wickering of Laurel, Mississippi was deemed by 10 Senate Democrats to be "unfit" to serve on the 5th Circuit Court in New Orleans basically because he is a strong Christian who is active in his church.

He was too conservative his critics said, too close to his God. Seems a few folks on the left side think its OK for judges to be atheists, but Christian conservatives are not fit for the bench - how out-of-touch.

As for the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, given what happened this week I wouldn't be surprised if one day they say our Constitution itself is actually unconstitutional.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions or comments about this column. Write to: U.S. Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C. 20510 (Attn: Press Office)

United States government.

It is a ruling by a three judge panel of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco that is completely out of touch with the rest of the country.

The decision was written by Judge Alfred T. Goodwin, who was appointed by President Nixon. It was supported by a President Carter appointee and was opposed by an appointee of the first President Bush.

The House, the Senate, the Presidency, and the American people have condemned this ruling and ridiculed the judges who made it. The day after the ruling I voted for H.Res. 459 denouncing the courts decision.

Certainly, it is the function of every court in the United States to make decisions on legally disputed matters that are brought before them.

Fortunately, in this country our Founding Fathers had the wisdom to establish a systematic legal process that provides for any decision to be brought to a higher court to ensure that the final decision on a matter is the just one.

This decision will go to the U.S. Supreme Court, where the 9th US Circuit Court of Appeals is the most overruled.

I want to make something very clear, this decision is in no way a reflection of the U.S. House, Senate, or the Presidency. Furthermore it is not a reflection of my views.

Each year I send out calendars to schools in the district with the words, "One Nation Under God With Liberty and Justice For All" printed on the front.

I was elected to faithfully serve the people of South Mississippi as their representative in Washington, DC. I have always admired my constituents for your patriotism, your good-hearts, and your deep understanding of the core values that separate this country from the rest of the world.

I will always defend those values and work hard to protect them from any force that threatens their rightful place in our nation.

Generations of Americans have suffered the horrors of war, many of them lost their lives in battle, to protect the ideals and principles expressed in our pledge of allegiance.

It is a shame that one of our own courts, whose existence is the very product of the wisdom of our founding fathers and has been protected with the blood of so many Americans, has attempted to remove a vital part of our nations character and identity.

Our veterans made their sacrifice for a nation that stood for all that was good and decent in the world.

They do not deserve to have the fruits of their efforts taken away by anyone. America has been met with many challenges over the passed year.

Never before has it been so important for us to stay reminded of those values that have kept us strong in the past and will carry us triumphantly into the future.

Sewage -- from the beginning began to meet with representatives from the Gulf of Mexico Program, who had agreed to act as mediators and organizers for a new county-wide treatment plan.

Prior to the 1960s, individual septic systems and cess pools were used for wastewater treatment and, in many cases, no treatment was provided. Raw sewage ran directly into ditches and waterways. In the mid-1960s, Bay St. Louis constructed a sewage collection system and an oxidation pond to manage waste for some areas of the city.

In 1964, the city of Waveland began to look into the possibility of a wastewater treatment facility, but funding for such a facility did not become available until after Hurricane Camille. In April of 1970, the Economic Development Administration approved a grant for the city that would make possible the construction of a plant.

The grant contained conditions that the plant be regional and of sufficient capacity to accommodate possible future expansion of service to include Bay St. Louis. Release of the funds were contingent upon the Bay joining in, which the Bay vehemently opposed.

By 1972, the Clean Water Act and the Environmental Protection Agency changed their position on lagoon treatment and Bay St. Louis was forced to reverse its position, though city officials still insisted that they could not afford to fund the project.

EPA officials assured Waveland that if the facility were built that they would work toward getting reimbursement from Bay St. Louis. A contract was awarded for the Waveland Treatment Plant in November of 1973 and operations began in January of 1976.

In 1974, beginning studies of pollution on the coast resulted in a state commission deciding, in 1980, that the problem should be handled on a Coast-wide basis under the auspices of an authority called the Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Authority. Hancock County opposed this idea.

Consequently, a group of officials led by then-Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. worked successfully to create a separate Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District, which eventually became the Southern Regional Wastewater Management District, by a name change in 1993. The public state entity was originally named Waveland because it had been decided that Waveland would be the lead applicant for federal funds.

State officials were not pleased with the county's decision to remain separate and threatened to withhold funding and withdraw permits. A seven-page letter from Longo to then-Gov. William R. Winter accused the Gulf Coast Authority of coercion, of trying to steal Waveland's plant for a ridiculous price. The authority wanted to buy the two-year-old plant valued at $2 million for a little over $100,000.

Meanwhile, Hancock County officials signed a service contract with Waveland. Bay St. Louis officials followed when they were threatened with a state-mandated building moratorium because of their treatment practices.

The plant received several awards from the EPA. At this time spray irrigation, rather than water discharge of treated wastewater, was discussed and approved, but funding was lacking for the project.

In the late 1980s, the plant underwent a 2.5 MGD expansion that was expected to handle wastewater treatment needs in the county for 10 to 20 years, but within two years, with rapid growth in the county, officials began to realize the need for yet another expansion. That 1.5 MGD expansion began in February of 1994 and was completed in August of 1995.

With new developments and the possibility of adding many other parts of the county as customers for wastewater treatment, Southern Regional has undertaken yet another expansion, to be completed next month.

This expansion adds measuring capability, which will allow the plant to bill each entity fairly. It also has updated equipment and treatment facilities to comply with new EPA guidelines, which change on a regular basis, in an ongoing effort to control pollution.

Seven other proposed phases which would add wastewater treatment for the Pearlinton and Kiln areas; improve services to Bay St. Louis, Waveland and the county; and later add more treatment capacity at Southern Regional itself are on the drawing board, with the help of the expertise of the Gulf of Mexico Program. For now, these other projects are on hold while the various districts struggle with the financing for collection systems in their communities.

Current contracts held by Southern Regional for Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Hancock County Water and Sewer District and the county remain in effect for another ten years. For the new projects to continue, new contracts - which include Kiln and Pearlinton - will need to be signed, said Southern Regional administrator Cheryl Colson. Until new contracts are signed, expanded capacity for wastewater treatment for these areas could be on hold. As a result, a moratorium on building permits could be a consequence.

Farm Bill workshop for farmers and landowners

Farmers, forest landowners, and others will benefit from a July 10 workshop in Hattiesburg on the new federal Farm Bill.

"The recent passage of the 2002 Farm Security and Rural Improvement Act (FSRIA) will have profound and dramatic effects on agricultural producers and related businesses in Mississippi and surrounding states," said Dr. John Anderson, Extension agricultural economist with the Mississippi State University Extension Service. "Farmers, forest landowners, ranchers, bankers, and others associated with agriculture in Mississippi need educational and decision making information to respond to changes brought about by this legislation."

The workshop is designed to help people understand these changes and enable them to make more informed decisions about how the legislation may affect them.

"This legislation increases conservation provisions by 80% and combines some existing forestry programs," said Dr. Glenn Hughes, Extension forester with the MSU Extension Service in Hattiesburg.

Workshop topics include commodity payment programs, dairy program provisions, base and yield updating, and conservation programs. Speakers include C.W. "Bill" Herndon, John Anderson, Charlie Forrest and Jim Quinn, all with the Department of Agricultural Economics at Mississippi State University. The workshop will be held at the Hattiesburg Recreation Center (the Old YMCA), 300 North 126 Avenue, next to Hattiesburg High School.

Registration begins at 9 a.m., and the program runs from 9:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. Registration is free and includes the workshop, a folder of information, and lunch.

Redistrict -- unpopular option and constable districts. There were no comments logged concerning the change in the county supervisors redistricting plan.

Ben Collins and Taylor Young, from the Stennis Institute of Government — the agency that came up with the redistricting options — presented a prepared report to the about 20 or so people who attended.

Growth in the county, now at pop. 42,967, has resulted in a total range of deviation in supervisors' districts of 41.76 percent, Collins said.

The accepted range of deviation in population between districts is 10 percent or under. The option 7 redistricting plan would reduce that range to 8.3 percent.

Redistricting also strives to preserve majority minority districts, effective minority districts, and influence or minority impact districts. Accepted practices recommend compactness, no long fingers or odd shapes. Districts also must be "contiguous," or touching. Preserving the core of existing districts is also important in a successful redistricting plan, Collins said, as well as protection of incumbency, recognition of political boundaries and preserving communities of interest.

Because of population growth, a third justice court and constable district needed to be created, Collins said.

Attorney Harry Ward said he opposed the proposed option 4 redistricting plan for the three new districts. Ward said that any of the first three options seemed to be a fairer choice based on population deviation and for keeping judges and constables in their own districts. He said option 4 had too broad a range of population deviation between the three districts.

Collins pointed out that the deviation in option 4 was 6.25 percent, well below the standard 10 percent allowed and less than population deviation in supervisors' districts.

Many others also opposed option 4, some for other reasons.

"You (Collins) said division of population is the ideal goal," said Diane Bridges. "I am for option 1, 2, or 3."

Later Bridges said, after learning that option 4 was derived from meetings between supervisors, judges and constables, that she felt one of the first three options, developed by an impartial party, Collins, should be considered.

"If he (Collins) came up with options 1, 2, and 3 with no politics involved, then the public would choose option 1, 2, or 3," said Bridges.

Several other people expressed their concerns over changes made after these local meetings.

"I feel that the flow of the conversation is that judges and constables got their fingers in the process and that does not sit well," said Supervisor Rocky Pullman. "This is a normal process to get input from constituents."

Pullman said he supported option 4.

"If you get input for constituents, than how much voice do I have," asked Bridges.

"It is important that you be heard," said Supervisor Lisa Coward.

Attorney Joe Kelly said he supported option 4 because it combined the right number of urban and rural residents between the districts, a cross-section of the population. A couple from Diamondhead also supported the option.

Judge Tommy Carver said that the three judges will not just represent people in their districts, but will work on a rotating basis on court cases.

Board Attorney Ronnie Artigues closed the hearing, telling people that if any changes were made to existing options, that the public would be notified. If no changes are made, a plan will be sent to the justice department for approval.

for more than 22 years; he has served in many capacities in the league including being chairman of the Finance Committee and an active member of the Legislative and Executive Committees as well as a long-standing member of the MML Board of Directors.

He also serves as a director with the Mississippi Municipal Service Company that handles workman's compensation and liability insurance for municipal workers.

Favre has been the Mayor of Bay St. Louis since 1989 and served as the city's city clerk from 1980-89.

Favre was graduated from University of Southern Mississippi in 1977 with a bachelor of science in business administration and became a certified public accountant in 1981.

Favre, son of the late

Nelius Favre and Ethel Favre of Bay St. Louis is the father of two sons, Jonathan and Jamie.

"I am deeply honored to have been elected to serve as the Mississippi Municipal League's first vice-president. I am looking forward to continuing my strong working relationship with the staff of the MML to help better serve our members," Favre said.

"We are thrilled to have Mayor Favre's guidance for the MML. The purpose of the league is to help our municipal officials provide quality services to their citizens at the lowest possible cost. We strive to accomplish that goal through our legislative agenda and our education, research and communication programs. We know that Mayor Favre will be a strong asset in helping us to continue to reach our goals," said MML Executive Director Jeanie

Mayor Robert Coggins of Baldwin was elected to the MML's presidency, and Mayor Gene McGee of Ridgeland was elected to the MML's second vice-presidency.

The Mississippi Municipal League, which was organized in 1931, includes almost 300 member cities and towns throughout the state. The MML is a non-profit, non-partisan association of cities throughout Mississippi.

The group holds its annual summer conference in Biloxi and a mid-winter conference in Jackson, coinciding with the legislative session.

More than 3,200 people met in Biloxi for this four-day convention where the MML officers were elected by the MML membership.

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The American Bus Association listed Mardi Gras on Mississippi's Gulf Coast among its "Top 100 Events of 2003 in North America," while the Southeast Tourism Society chose the annual Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo as a "Top 20" event for July 2002 and Chautauqua at Beauvoir and the Biloxi Seafood Festival as "Top 20" events for September 2002.

"Mississippi's Gulf Coast Mardi Gras being selected a top 100 event by ABA will increase the visibility and awareness of Mississippi's Gulf Coast as a prime destination for motorcoach tours," said Janet Harrington, motorcoach manager for the Mississippi Gulf Coast Convention & Visitors Bureau.

"Motorcoach business is an important factor to tourism on the Coast. We can look forward to 2003 being a great year."

ABA is the trade association of the motorcoach industry and represents approximately 800 motorcoach companies in the United States and Canada.

STS is a non-profit organization designed to promote travel to and within the 10 Southeastern states. Mississippi's Gulf Coast has often recognized by STS through its monthly top 20 lists and is the third year for ABA to feature the Coast in its top 100 list.

The annual Gulf Coast Spring Pilgrimage was listed this year and Cruisin' the Coast was recognized in 2001.

"Diversity of the Coast's tourism product is the key message in our consumer advertising efforts and these honors just prove more people are learning it to be true," said Steve Richer, executive director of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Chamber After Hours set for Thursday

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and members located near the Colonial Plaza Complex (412 Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis) will play host to Business After Hours on Thursday, July 11 from 5-7 p.m.

David Holman of Charter Mortgage, chairman of the event, says the Chamber's July After Hours promises to be an event you do not want to miss.

Other sponsoring businesses include: Check Cashing Services, Choice Supermarkets, Farm Bureau Insurance, Hancock County Tourism Development Bureau, Frank and Marilyn Hille, One Hour Photo, Republic Finance, Inc., The Peoples Bank, and MAK Medical Equipment & Respiratory.

Door prizes will be offered throughout the evening by sponsoring businesses to make the event a memorable one for members and their guests.

The event will be catered by Neil Favre's Southern Delights, sponsored by Farm Bureau and The Peoples Bank. It has been rumored that an appearance by the "red hat" ladies, the new unofficial ambassadors for Hancock County, is highly possible. Live music will be provided by the Beat Daddys.

The Beat Daddys are Malaco/Waldoxy recording artists, originating in 1986 by Bay St. Louis resident Larry Grisham. As band leader, this was his vehicle to promote his songs to the music public. Grisham is lauded as the heart of the band, through his songwriting and powerful vocals.

Guitarist Britt Meacham provides the soul for this great blues-rock band. Among his numerous credits, Meacham played guitar on the Bob Seger Classic, "Old Time Rock 'n Roll."

The rhythm section includes John Hedman on bass and Chico McCollum on drums. Hedman performed with casino show bands, while McCollum consistently toured with national acts.

During the event, the Chamber of Commerce will kick off a new member campaign. Linda Graffeo, co-chair of the Member Services Committee said Herbert Dubuison of Coldwell Banker Alfonso Realty is leading the effort for the Chamber.

"We are encouraging all Chamber members and their guests to make plans to attend this event," said Dubuison. "We hope businesses who are considering membership will come to the event to meet other members to learn more about the great benefits of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce," he said.

The Chamber promotes the social, civic and economic well-being of the county, and is a voluntary organization of 650 business, community and governmental leaders who represent over 4,500 employees.

Member benefits include business referrals, publicity, marketing and business networking opportunities, seminars and counseling services. Active members provide leadership to community development, member services, education and beautification.

For a small business of up to four employees, the membership investment is $125. Membership is on a sliding scale, based on the number of employees.

"As a small business person, joining the Chamber was one of the best marketing decisions I have ever made," said Jody Compretta, owner of Patients Choice, a durable medical equipment and supplies company and president of the 20-member Chamber board.

"Not only do I benefit from the business referrals and networking, I also enjoy giving back to the community," he said.

To join the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce contact Herbert Dubuison of Coldwell Banker Alfonso Realty at 467-0244, Linda Graffeo of Hancock Bank at 466-5919 or Tish Williams at the Chamber 467-9048.

Business & Industry Expo deadline is Aug. 1

When was the last time you spent $150 to promote your business to 7,700 consumers? Now you can by participating in the Annual Business and Industry Expo sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

"If you are a member of the Chamber and have not yet signed up to take advantage of this great marketing opportunity, I strongly encourage you to call the Chamber today to make your reservation," said Linda Graffeo, chairman of the Expo and co-chairman of the Chamber's Membership Services Committee.

Graffeo also encourages businesses who are not yet members of the Chamber to consider joining. "This is a great time to join the Chamber to take advantage of these value added benefits for your business," she said.

For information on membership and the Expo, contact the Chamber at 228-467-9048.

Sponsored by the Chamber's Member Services Committee, the Expo will be Thursday, August 22 from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Hancock County Civic Center-Longfellow Road in Bay St. Louis.

Last year 80 businesses participated to promote their products and services to thousands of consumers attending the show.

Consumers enjoy the show too, thanks to area businesses that provide great give-aways, food, beverages and entertainment for all ages.

Graffeo said that this year, the committee is pleased to be able to increase booth spaces to 90.

Already, she said reservations are booking up fast with more than 50 booths reserved. Booth space is limited and is open to all Chamber members.

As an added benefit to participants this year, The Sea Coast Echo will produce a special Business and Industry Expo supplement to be distributed in a regular issue of the paper prior to the start of the show.

The deadline to reserve your booth is Thursday, August 1 to be included in the Sea Coast Echo Special Supplement (distribution 7,700).

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce promotes the social, civic and economic well-being of the County, and is a voluntary organization of 650 business, community and governmental leaders who represent over 4,500 employees.

To join the Chamber and/or reserve your spot in the Expo, contact Tish Williams at 228-467-9048 or drop by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce located at Colonial Plaza, 412 Highway 90, Suite 6, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

Hornet's owner to address Gulf Coast AdFed July 11

New Orleans Hornets majority owner and managing partner George Shinn - an American "rags-to-riches" success story archetype - will join the Mississippi Gulf Coast Advertising Federation (AdFed) as featured speaker during the organization's July 11, 2002 meeting.

Doors to the meeting open at 11:45 a.m. at Biloxi's Holiday Inn-Coliseum on Highway 90, and seating is limited. Admission, including buffet lunch, costs $10 members; $15, non-members.

Shinn owned the NBA's Charlotte Hornets for the team's 14-year existence before the franchise relocated to the Crescent City in 2002. Once described by positive-thinking guru Dr. Norman Vincent Peale as "one of the most dynamic men I have ever known," entrepreneur, philanthropist, and author Shinn, 60, rose from humble beginnings in Kannapolis, NC, to achieve his lifelong dream of owning a professional sports franchise.

At age 34, Shinn was the youngest person to win the nationally prestigious Horatio Alger Award honoring community leaders who demonstrate remarkable individual initiative as well as exemplary dedication to service, spiritual faith, and American ideals. Shinn also received the nation's American Success Award from President George Bush for work in vocational-technical education.

A recognized humanitarian who has pledged 10 percent of his annual income to charity, Shinn credits his initial success to owning a chain of proprietary business schools that grew from the institution where he received his formal education and once served as janitor. The Mississippi Gulf Coast chapter of the American Advertising Federation (AAF) fosters and recognizes the highest standards of professional excellence and ethics among advertising, marketing, graphic design, public relations, communications, and design specialists; encourages personal and professional growth among practitioners and students in those fields; and facilitates public understanding of relationships among strategic advertising, marketing, public relations, communications, and creative business solutions.

AdFed meets on the first Thursday of each month, excluding holidays. Readers seeking more information about AdFed activities or membership may call (228) 388-9830 or e-mail amber@theadgroup.net.

Try fly fishing for a different twist

BY JAMES L. CUMMINS

I have been fly fishing for over 15 years and I can attest to the increase in the number of people fly fishing, especially when I fished for trout while in school in Virginia.

If you are interested in fly fishing, but don't care for traveling long distances, the answer lies right in your backyard.

Mississippi is blessed with thousands of acres of waters which hold enough bluegill to make any angler dance a jig. Bluegill can provide the same kind of fun that trout do and can provide valuable practice in the many finer points of fly fishing.

Fly fishing for bluegill is not just a fun and exciting way to fish, it can be extremely effective.

During the spawn, males are usually around beds and are extremely aggressive. They will hit almost any fly or popping bug that comes close to them. A fish every cast is not unusual (and my wife likes to remind me).

Equipment should be kept simple. If bluegill are to be the main focus of your fly fishing efforts, a 7 to 7.5 foot, fiberglass rod designed to cast 4 to 5 weight lines will be sufficient and will aid in casting accuracy, especially in close quarters.

If you think you might try trout with the same gear, you may want to consider an 8 to 9 foot graphite or composite rod, designed to cast 5 to 7 weight line.

In a fly fishing reel, a lightweight, single-action reel with some type of drag system is all you need.

As is the case with monofilament line, there are many different types of fly lines on the market and it can be quite confusing trying to pick what is right for you.

The manufacturer will suggest a line size best suited for that particular fly rod. I would advise using light weight line. For example, if you have a rod designed for 5 to 7 weight line, try 5 weight.

A double taper or weight forward taper in a floating line will give you the most versatility and will also simplify casting.

Manufactured leaders come in various lengths and sizes and are a matter of personal preference. For bluegill, match the length of your leader to the length of your rod.

The leader should be tapered and the tippet should be somewhere in the 3 to 6 pound test size. Because of the expense of manufactured leaders, it would be wise to purchase tippet material in the same test size as your leader.

This way when your leader gets down to the heavier test, you can simply tie on a piece of the tippet material to make your leader, it's original length, rather than replacing the leader.

Effective flies for bluegill include popping bugs, wet flies and nymphs, in various insect patterns, and a few dry flies. Remember that bluegill have small mouths, so flies in 12 to 20 hook sizes work best.

The best colors are black, olive-green and brown. Now that you are fully equipped, locate some fish. And take a young person with you!

New youth fishing license available

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Mississippi youth hunters and anglers now can have a hunting and fishing license just like adults, according to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

The new, voluntary license sells for $5 and was approved by the last session of the state Legislature.

It's available to Mississippi youth under 16 years of age who have successfully passed the state's hunter education course.

In addition, the Legislature provided $5 voluntary licenses for seniors over 65 and disabled hunters between 16 and 65.

"Our new volunteer license really came about as a request from the public, especially young people who wanted to show their support of our agency," Executive Director Dr. Sam Polles said.

"Those who choose to buy the new, voluntary license will be helping wildlife and fisheries management across Mississippi."

Mississippi receives federal aid funding from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for fisheries and wildlife projects based on taxes paid by hunters and anglers for various kinds of hunting and fishing equipment.

The amount of money Mississippi receives annually is based on a formula that considers such things as the number of hunting and fishing licenses sold along with the total land area of the state.

The number of the voluntary licenses sold will now be used along with all other license types as part of this formula, Polles said.

The monies are used to fund various projects on state wildlife management areas, state lakes, hunter education, and boating education.

Red snapper season closes today

Commercial fishing season for red snapper (Lutjanus campechanus) closes in Mississippi marine territorial waters July 7 at noon.

The National Marine Fisheries Service has determined that the spring commercial quota of red snapper is projected to be reached on this date. The 2002 Gulf of Mexico spring red snapper quota is 3.10 million pounds.

The dosing of commercial red snapper season in Mississippi marine territorial waters coincides with the closing of red snapper season in federal waters.

The closing of the commercial red snapper season is issued under the authority of Section 49-15-15 (1) (a) of the Mississippi Code of 1972 (Annotated) and Order of the Mississippi Commission on Marine Resources (Dec. 5, 1995).

The Mississippi Department of Marine

Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the State by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes.

SECOND SLIDELL EXIT

Taking skating to the 'Xtreme'

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

Ever since their third grade days in California, Kelly Welsh and his buddy Sean Jukosky dreamed of building their own skate park.

Although Welsh moved to Mississippi eight years ago, he did not abandon his dream or his friendship. In March 2002, Welsh opened South Coast Xtreme Sports in Waveland, and Jukosky, who still lives in California, was the first to skate there with him.

"It's a dream come true," said Welsh, a 33-year-old who has been skating for 27 years.

The 4-month-old skate park may very well be a dream come true for many local skaters. "We have a great local bunch that comes here pretty much every day after school and in the summer," Welsh said.

Erik Andersen, 16, said he braves the ramps at Xtreme Sports at least twice a week. The Bay St. Louis native, who's been skating for about three years, said he likes the indoor park because he doesn't have to worry about rain, and he can spend the day skating with friends.

As for the ramps, Andersen said "the set-up is killer."

Another regular is 17-year-old David Davis. The Kiln resident walks about 20 miles every day to skate.

"I do it because it's so much fun, and I love to skate," said Davis, who's been skating for over a year.

Welsh's skate park is also popular with out-of-town skaters.

"Waveland's a great town, I think, because it's centrally located," Welsh said. "It's close to New Orleans, Alabama, Jackson. It's a really good hub for a skate park."

He said the casinos help bring in many out-of-town skaters. "When parents come down," he said, "the kids have a place to go as well. The majority of our skaters are from out-of-town, but still have a lot of locals."

Since its opening, the skate park has 235 members, who are regulars, and 1520 skaters on file who have been at least once.

"We average over 300 kids a week," Welsh said.

Jack Brehmer, the manager, attributes the park's popularity to its uniqueness.

"It's the only thing around here like this," said the 19-year-old Bay St. Louis resident. "The park was made by a skateboarder for skateboarders."

Brehmer said the park also promotes a friendly atmosphere and is well-designed. "There's nothing in the course that isn't used," he said.

The 25,000-square-foot

South Coast Xtreme Sports-owner Kelly Walsh gets some air at the skate park Friday as longtime friend and facility manager Jack Brehmer watches.

Since its opening in March, the skate park has averaged a 300-skater per week attendance.

facility boasts a 20,000-square-foot indoor skate park, a 3,400-square-foot retail skate and clothing store, a concession stand and an upstairs viewing room for parents.

Although this facility is new to the area, Welsh has plans to make the park and its location very well known among skateboarders.

"I want my facility to be well-known all over the United States," he said. He plans to accomplish this goal by hosting skateboarding competitions. Two upcoming events include the Birdhouse Pro Tour on Aug. 9 and the First Annual King of the Park on Aug. 4.

Welsh said his major priority, however, is to establish the park as a place where skaters can come to perform and improve their level of skating.

Farmers' markets reap many rewards

FROM THE PACE FILES
BY LINDA BREAZEALE

Farmers' markets are finding their niche in community economies across the state as producers and customers develop mutually beneficial relationships.

"Farmers' markets have a place in communities who have an appreciation for fresh produce," said David Nagel, horticulture specialist with Mississippi State University's Extension Service.

"Prices are similar to grocery stores, but the produce is fresher. Most of the produce is grown within a 25-mile radius of the market. Grocery produce may be from as far as 2,000 miles away."

Nagel said the appeal for Mississippi producers is the ability to supplement their income on a small area of land while making those close community ties that make Mississippi such a friendly state.

In the last couple of years, farmers' markets have developed in many Mississippi counties.

Diane Hill, executive director of the Southaven Chamber of Commerce, said the 2001 growing season was a successful year for that city's new farmers' market.

In 2000, the market was set up in a temporary location in a parking lot, but this year it benefited from a more permanent, open-air building.

"Obviously, people love the fresh produce, but even more than that, it gave people a sense of community," Hill said. "That kind of shopping atmosphere that encourages visiting appealed to people. The market also brought people into the community, both vendors and shoppers."

Joy Anderson, Extension horticulture agent in Desoto County, said the Southaven Chamber of Commerce was instrumental in the success of this market.

Booth rental, promotion, and supervision were among the Chamber's efforts.

"Extension can provide advice on crop and business issues. We can encourage people to grow produce for

'Rag Tag' group digging up the past for fun, if not profit

Most people have dreamed of finding buried treasure, but the members of the Rag Tag Treasure Hunters Club have turned their dreams into reality. For fun and profit — though mostly for fun — this group of friends combs the highways and byways in search of the elusive big find.

I had been began experiencing intense neck pain several months ago. The pain was sporadic, but when it did occur, it was bad.

I noticed the pain mostly at night and when I turned in my sleep, the pain would wake me up. Gradually with time, the periods of pain increased and the area of pain spread down my arms. I was losing sleep and acting cranky. Under Stella's urging I went to see Dr. Sidney.

Once in his office, he gave me the usual prods and "say ah's" and then got down to business and started pressing the bones in my neck.

"This is it right here, right?" he pressed hard. It hurt. I mentioned this rather loudly. "I thought so. The pain in your arm is just symptomatic. The problem is right here. But exactly what is wrong here, I can't tell without a lot of tests. We could send you and have a MRI done, but that's expensive and time consuming. It may just be arthritis. If it is, there are medications that may help you. Let's try them first."

He called Nell in to bring me some samples of an arthritic medicine and gave me a prescription.

I tried the medicine and, like the ads we are subjected to on television every ten minutes, it worked and I had the prescription filled. It was expensive.

About a week later, I began to have rather unpleasant reactions that had not been dramatized in the television ads. I quickly realized that the happy people I saw in the ads were either actors or survivors.

I threw away the prescription and called Dr. Sidney. He prescribed another arthritis medication. When it also didn't agree with me, he gave me a third which did agree but did not work as well.

By about the fourth week I found myself with the pain reduced considerably and on a continual regime of expensive medication. I decided that unless the pain got worse, I could live with the status quo. At least I was sleeping at night.

Then one night, the pain flared up worse than ever and I got up the next morning feeling that I had not even gone to bed.

I was about to call Dr. Sidney and tell him to set me up with the clinical tests, when I remembered Dr. Keith, a chiropractor I had gone to see a couple of times when I had bent my back in ways that it had

Son of Kiln man supports military partnership in the Americas

BY JERUEA HARRIS

ABOARD USS DOYLE - Promoting America's cooperation with its South American neighbors has been a U.S. Navy priority for more than four decades.

Each year, U.S. Navy and Coast Guard vessels head south to join ships from other nations of the Americas in Unitas, an exercise designed to enhance military interoperability and strengthen the ties among the participating nations.

The guided missile frigate USS Doyle participated in the Caribbean phase of Unitas as part of a five-ship American task force. As a member of the Doyle's crew, Navy Fireman Randy M. Horton, son of Daniel Horton of Kiln, made an important contribution to the success of the Caribbean phase of Unitas.

"I am involved with fire-fighting, flooding containment and chemical and biological warfare defense. I think I have a rather large responsibility," explained the 21-year-old damage control technician. "My job plays a big role in the ship's progress, maneuverability and safety of everyone including myself."

Designated with the Latin word for unity, Unitas has been vital in promoting hemispheric defense and friendship for more than 42 years.

In those years, Unitas has transformed from a series of bilateral exercises into a complex series of multinational training operations involving Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard forces from 11 countries in the Americas and from four European countries.

Unitas is conducted in four different phases. The Caribbean phase is typically conducted in early spring, followed by a bilateral amphibious phase and the Atlantic phase during the summer months. The Atlantic phase concludes the yearly exercise cycle in November.

In addition to Doyle, the Caribbean phase also included the guided missile cruiser USS Yorktown, as the lead ship, the attack submarine USS Pittsburgh, the Coast Guard Cutter Thetis and the auxiliary ship USNS Preval.

U.S. Navy P-3C Orion patrol aircraft from Patrol Squadron Eleven (VP-11) and Seahawk helicopters provided air support to the exercise.

The American task force was joined by naval forces from Colombia, Panama, Venezuela, and for the first time ever, Mexico and Dominican Republic.

The multinational coalition fostered by Unitas provides key support to American efforts in homeland defense and counter-drug operations.

"Unitas is very important because we get to help foreign nations. We learn a lot from each other like war strategies and what one would do in every situation. We do missile shoots and gun exercises," said Horton.

Horton joined the Navy in October of 1999. "I joined the military to get a good start in life. I knew I wanted to travel and see other parts of the world. I chose the Navy for the benefits and the GI bill," said Horton.

Home ported in Mayport, Fla., USS Doyle is primarily responsible for bringing anti-war warfare capabilities to the frigate mission.

Guided missile frigates are known to protect convoys and underway replenishment groups. They are armed with harpoons and group rallied at the foot of the Bay bridge this week to scour the beach for treasures. One of their biggest claims to fame, said club member Thomas Ruffin, was finding a diamond tennis bracelet for a judge.

"A bunch of us went to the judge's house to look for the bracelet. She had offered a $100 award," said Ruffin. "We looked all over through tall weeds with our detectors and just when we were giving up, I looked down and there it was, on a part of the property that was mowed."

The judge was just as happy to find her bracelet, Ruffin said, and gave him the $100 reward.

The club started with two very experienced treasure hunters, John Miller and John Mailhes. Mailhes is the president of the club. Between them, they have some 80 years of treasure hunting experience.

Miller has searched all over the country, but spent most of his time hunting for diamonds in Arkansas, gold in California, and relics in Louisiana, he said. He has found lots of money, old coins and jewelry, including a diamond ring. One of his most treasured finds is an antique fire hose nozzle.

Miller grew up in Chalmette, where his grandfather was a river boat captain on the Teche River and his grandmother filled his childhood with stories of pirates and treasure.

"When we were kids we would play pirate and dig for treasure," said Miller. "We found all kinds of things, including Civil War cannon balls, which we played with and then just threw in the water. We didn't know their value."

While spending time in the hospital in the early 1960s, Miller met a man who had some maps of gold mines. He was supposed to meet with the man and go on a hunt, but missed the meeting and didn't go - but his interest was aroused.

Miller did own up to finding a gold Spanish coin in Galveston, TX., but said that most good treasure hunters keep their finds and their hunting areas to themselves. There are too many laws which could rob a man of his find. The laws vary from state to state, Miller said, though some are national. A National Antiquities Act covers most everything, he said.

Mailhes started hunting in 1971. Since then he has found lots of treasure, but his pride is the civil war relics that he has recovered. The pride of his collection is three 68 caliber miniballs, that even the Smithsonian has no examples of, he said, and a Civil War-era belt buckle from the state of New York.

Mailhes hunts in many areas, he said, but has found most of his collection in Northern Louisiana, he said.

"You can't hunt in state or national parks," said Mailhes. "But there is usually plenty of private property around the edges of parks that people will let you search for a fee."

"When I first started hunting my idea was to donate the relics to a school, but no one wanted them. So now I have decided to leave them to my kids."

Club members don't just hunt for themselves, however, they use their skills to find things for others, also. The group can do old home-site searches to find historical pieces or heirlooms which might have some value to a family or the community. They have donated objects to the historical society, said member Doc Toups. At one site on Washington

St. in the Bay, they found a 50-caliber machine gun bullet that had been fired.

"It's a good hobby and good exercise and we even carry bags and pick up trash along the way," he said. The club is looking for new members. If you are interested call 228-466-2983 or e-mail the group at swamprat20022002@yahoo.com.

the farmers' market; but the community needed someone like the Chamber of Commerce to make it happen," Anderson said.

Reba Bland, Lafayette County Extension home economist, said the 2001 market was the first in a couple of decades in Oxford. A supervisory board oversaw the market in general and developed guidelines to ensure that most of the produce was locally grown.

In addition to produce, garden and houseplants were sold in their parking lot location. "The farmers' market was successful not just because growers made money, but because of the way it brought the community together," Bland said.

"Next year should be even better as we add a more permanent, open-air shed to protect us from the elements."

not been meant to bend. I called him and he told me to come right over.

Once in his office, he gave me the usual prods and then got down to business and started pressing the bones in my neck.

"This is it right here, right?" I yelled. "I thought so. The pain in your arm is just symptomatic. The problem is right here. It may just be a lot of things. Let's try some treatment today and if that works we will try a regular regime of treatment and see if things get better and we can bring this under control."

He smiled and spoke soothing words as machines rubbed my sore neck and body and when I went home an hour later the pain was gone. I continued to see Dr. Keith for his workup twice a week for about three weeks and then once a week for about a month. Slowly, the pain gradually subsided. Any time I did start feeling any pain, it was close enough to my weekly visits for it to be massaged away.

Finally, when I entered a seemingly long quiet period, Dr. Keith said that I was to come only if I got a flare up. "If anytime it comes back. Call me and we'll work on making it go away."

That was a Friday, and I found myself facing weekend with a fresh look. Looking back, I realized that for slightly more than three months, I had been on a regime of reoccurring pains, expensive pills and prodding massage machines.

Although the pain was no longer a prominent part of my life, I could feel it smoldering in my neck joint ready to leap out at the slightest provocation. But, for the moment things were quiet and I felt I was at last regaining control of my life.

Later that evening after supper, Stella went into the living room to watch a cooking show and I went into the dining room and set up the lap top computer she had given me several months earlier for Christmas.

I had began a practice of working in the dining room in the evenings just before going to bed rather than in my cluttered office in the back of the house. Here with Jennie at my feet, I had found myself doing some of my best work.

Time passed, and in the comfortable quiet noises of a house at ease I hunched forward losing myself in complete engrossment of the small screen. Suddenly I felt an explosion of sharp excruciating pain in my neck that brought forth an involuntary yell. I jumped up just as Stella came running in.

"What's wrong? What happened?"

I stood there gasping, twisting my neck, my fingers massaging the deep pain that was suddenly raging there and in both arms.

"It's back! It's back. Every time I sit and try to work here, the pain comes back! This is the worst..."

I stopped and looked at the table and the small lap top and then turned to Stella who was staring at it also, her mouth formed into a small moue of surprise.

I silently picked up the computer and took it back to the office and then joined Stella at the television to watch Emeril cook another casserole.

I haven't worked with the lap top on the dining room table since and the pain has not come back.

It's 'Belles and Whistles' for Women's Center

Come dressed as your favorite belle for the fund-raising gala reception and special showing of Anita Modak-Truran's documentary film, "Belles and Whistles: A Northern Woman's Journey into Southern Ferndom," on Friday, July 19 at the Saenger Theater in Biloxi.

Before the 8 p.m. film, a gourmet reception is planned at 6 p.m. at the Redding House in downtown Biloxi. Featured guests will be Pat Fordice, former first lady of Mississippi, and Modak-Truran, the filmmaker.

All proceeds from ticket sales to the reception, film and raffle and tiara sales will benefit the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence, which serves the six counties of South Mississippi.

The center's mission is to eradicate family violence, provide support for victims of sexual assault and to educate the community.

"Most people do not realize the extent of our services," said Jane Philo, who has served as executive director for 18 years. "We not only serve victims of domestic violence and their families, but perpetrators of domestic violence, victims of sexual assault, children in our non-violent preschool, survivors who have had loved ones killed, and adults and children through our community and school education programs. It's a huge task."

The red carpet will be rolled out for the fund-raising event, which hopes to bring in thousands of dollars for the GCWCFN. Costumed belles will stroll the red carpet into the theater. Belles also will be shuttled from the Redding House to the Saenger in limousines.

Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. One Coastian quipped that he was coming as a cow bell, others think Scarlett O'Hara might be more their speed.

While the costume contest is fun, the film points out the strength and savvy of Southern women. Today's Southern belles don't sit on the porch sipping mint juleps.

They can be found in board rooms and leading companies throughout the Coast. They are active in their communities, but their hearts belong to their families.

Nominations also are being taken by The Bay Press for "Your Favorite Southern Belle." Nominees will receive tiaras and certificates proclaiming that they are indeed a Southern belle.

Cost for tickets to the reception and film will be $25 per person. For $10, a person can view the film.

Food for the reception will be provided by Coast restaurants and casinos. A cash bar will be set up at the Redding House.

Tickets are available at all branches of Southtrust Bank and by calling 435-0720. MasterCard, Visa and American Express may be used for ticket purchases.

Fund-raising sponsors include Southtrust Bank, Sweetman Security, Arlene Wall Realty Inc., Arlene Wall and Carolyn Handier, The Redding House and The Bay Press/Q92.5 FM.

The GCWCFN depends on federal grants, local governmental funding, the United Way and business and private donations to fund the center's many direct serve and educational offerings.

Only in the last year has the center held any fund-raising events because funding on the federal and local levels has been reduced.

"After 2 1/2 years of high numbers," Philo said, "we have learned to do the best we can. It is not comfortable when the shelter is crowded. We have no increase in staff, so counselors work extra hours and still cannot do all that they would like or need to do. Our staff certainly cares for those we serve."

The Chalmette Plan...it's what nursing was intended to be.

CMC believes a hospital doesn't have to be an impersonal environment with overworked nurses. So, we're changing the way healthcare is delivered. We've capped nurse/patient ratios to allow nurses to give patients the time and care they need. And we give our nurses the tools to better manage and treat their patients.

The Chalmette Plan offers nurses:

- Capped nurse/patient ratios
- Signing bonuses and loan reimbursements
- RN Nurse Tech Program for Junior and Senior students includes mentoring from experienced nurses and hands-on training
- LPN Student Nurse Program that teaches your skills to work while you learn
- Market competitive salaries
- A Night Shift Bonus for Med/Surg nurses
- CMC offers benefits comparable to national packages and more than competitive within the local market.

To find out more about
 The Chalmette Plan, call 504-620-6165.

At CMC, we're working together, to make life better. Not just on the outside, but from within. One person...one employee...one patient at a time.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SMUGGLERS OF THE WORD!

ONE WOULD THINK THE BIBLE WOULD BE WELCOME IN ANY PLACE ON EARTH—BUT THIS IS NOT THE CASE! NOR CAN ONE OPENLY BUY A BIBLE IN MANY COUNTRIES! IN RUSSIA, IT'S ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE. IN EAST GERMANY, CHANCES ARE SLIM! BULGARIA? NO! HUNGARY, CZECHOSLOVAKIA, VERY DIFFICULT—AND IN ALBANIA IT IS AN OUT-AND-OUT CRIME!

NO WONDER THEN THAT FORTY ORGANIZATIONS CONSTANTLY SMUGGLE BIBLES INTO IRON-CURTAIN COUNTRIES. TRAINED TO HANDLE THIS EXTRAORDINARY VENTURE, PROFESSIONALS AND SKILLED AMATEURS CROSS BORDERS IN VEHICLES SUCH AS THE VOLKSWAGON "BUG" WITH BUILT-IN SECRET COMPARTMENTS SOMETIMES HOLDING AS MANY AS 500 POCKET-SIZE BIBLES. IF CAUGHT, THE BIBLES ARE CONFISCATED AND THE PERSON REFUSED ENTRY INTO THE COUNTRY—BUT SOME ARE NOT SO LUCKY—THE LONGEST PRISON TERM TO DATE—3 1/2 YEARS IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA!

BUT DESPITE ALL THIS, THE WORK STILL GOES ON SO THAT...

"THE WORD OF GOD MAY BE HEARD OF ALL MEN"

And who is your God?

An avowed atheist, attorney/medical Doctor Michael A. Newdow was so incensed that his second-grade daughter was required to recite the Pledge of Allegiance at her Elk Grove school in Sacramento, California that he brought a suit against the practice. A federal judge dismissed the suit.

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"The senators and representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation, to support this Constitution." (Article VI, 3)

Responding to an appeal made by plaintiff-appellant Michael A. Newdow, who was representing himself, senior Judge Alfred Goodwin of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in California wrote an opinion holding the pledge to be unconstitutional because the phrase "one nation under God" is an official establishment of religion.

A huge hydrogen explosion might have attracted less notice. Outraged Americans of every political party, of every social stratum, of every profession and state in life converged like fiery hornets aroused in their nest, like 80,000 furious bees pouring out of their overturned hive, like a pride of lions being challenged in a fight to the death on their own turf.

Perhaps second only to 911, Judge Goodwin's opinion infuriated and galvanized the vast majority of Americans, goading them on to protest loudly and irascibly in writing, on the air, at home and in the streets.

One is loathe to dignify the ruling by analyzing and discussing it; yet, we have to say a few piddling things. How could a sane, intelligent person claim that adding "under God" is tantamount to establishing religion?

It must first be noted that no one is forced to recite the pledge, but may stand mute just as the Jehovah's Witnesses and others do. Second, one may omit "under God" or substitute one's own version of God, even nature.

Our greatest strength as Americans is that we tolerate theists, atheists, agnostics, freethinkers and what-nots as fellow citizens. "If it ain't broke, don't fix it." And folks, it ain't broke!

Put into effect on June 21, 1788 by New Hampshire, the ninth state to ratify, the Constitution of the United States gives a President-elect a choice of swearing in God's name or of giving a simple affirmation:

"Before he enter on the execution of his office, he shall take the following oath or affirmation: 'I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully ...'" (Article II, 8)

All other officers are likewise given a choice as to whether they will swear in God's name or give a simple affirmation:

Amendment 1 of the Constitution does not prohibit the mention of God in any way, but forbids only laws aimed at establishing a religion:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Twelve years before the Constitution, on July 4, 1776, the Declaration of Independence was more direct in embracing God in our country's bosom:

"When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them."

Thus, we see clearly that the Preamble to the Declaration of Independence draws its entitlements and authenticity from Nature's God.

It slides quickly into a Declaration of Rights:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator..."

The conclusion of the Declaration of Independence stops exactly where it starts, with a pointed acknowledgment of God:

"And for the support of the Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence..."

The Supreme Court itself begins each of its sessions with, "God save the United States and this honorable court." Our earthy, capitalism-bound currency chimes in with those immortal words, "In God we trust."

Those hot-and-bothered folks who think they are being put upon, forced to recite a creed they do not believe in, had better bear in mind that no one is constraining them to speak, let alone believe.

However, they had best also remember that everyone has a "God," some ultimate point of reference for their whole life and raison d'être.

Who/what, then, is their God if it is not Jesus, Allah, Hare Krishna, Buddha or nature?

It is scary if their ultimate point of reference is the worst tyrant: themselves.

The "Word" for the Week

Your relationship with God

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

There is no question about it. Men and women, young people and children avoid God. Why?

One reason is that our society does all in its power to discourage belief in God. We are told to believe in ourselves.

We are told that the strength to cope with life is found within us. And we are told that to believe in a Creator is foolishness.

But let me ask you. How do you know you were not created by God? "I just know," you say. But how do you know?

Have you searched out every corner of the universe? Do you know all there is to know about everything?

You refuse to believe in the God of the Bible who does know everything! But then you claim to know everything by denying His existence. Do you think you are God?

Listen to what the Bible says. It tells us the greatest sin of mankind is rejecting God in favor of self-worship. It says people have "exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God for an image in the form of corruptible man."

It says, "They exchanged the truth of God for a lie and worshipped and served the creature rather than the Creator" (Romans 1:23 and 25). And this is your sin if you think you can live without God.

It is because of this sin that Jesus Christ came into the world to die on a cross almost 2000 years ago. He came to pay the penalty due to people like you for their sins.

And so it is time for you to turn back to God. You can't get along in this life without Him. And without Him you will definitely not enter heaven in the life to come.

So it is time for you to admit your sins to God. It is time for you to trust in the sacrifice of Christ as the only adequate payment for your sins.

"They exchanged the truth of God for a lie and worshipped and served the creature rather than the Creator."

(Romans 1:23 & 25).

Billy Ray Cyrus in concert at Casino Magic

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Billy Ray Cyrus will bring his "Achy Breaky Heart" to Casino Magic Bay St. Louis on Thursday, July 11 at 9 p.m. Tickets are $14.95, $19.95 and $24.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or at any Ticketmaster location.

While best known for his groundbreaking "Achy Breaky Heart" a decade ago, Cyrus has not been resting on his laurels. Recently Cyrus has taken his career in new and interesting directions.

He presently stars in the number 1 PAX-TV series "Doc," where he plays a Montana doctor who moves to New York City. Cyrus, who never stands still for long, left Canada right after finishing up the second season of "Doc," to celebrate with fans at Fan Fair in Nashville in mid-June, then kicked off his "Time Flies" concert tour, for the CD to be released later this year.

The "Time Flies" tour started in Southern California on June 29 in San Juan Capistrano, and criss-crosses the U.S. twice, hitting 45 cities in 75 days. One stop will be at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis.

His first album, "Some Gave All" sold over 14 million copies, largely due to "Achy Breaky Heart," but the title song went on to become an anthem for

Billy Ray Cyrus

Vietnam Veterans as well.

His impressive career resume also includes the million-selling "It Won't Be The Last," three number-one hits and many top-ten singles including 1999's "Busy Man."

Over the years Cyrus has maintained his worldwide success, earning multi-platinum certifications in Australia, platinum in Denmark and New Zealand and a Diamond Award in Canada.

Cyrus has also taken the time to give back through numerous charitable activities. For those efforts he has been recognized by The Kennedy Center Honors for his work with children, received a Humanitarian Award from Child Help USA, and received the first ever Bob Hope Congressional Medal of Honor Society Entertainer's Award for his dedication to philanthropy, to name a few.

"I just do what feels right," said Cyrus recently. "I think it's up to each of us to give back where and when we can." One of his proudest efforts has been the Billy Ray Cyrus Foundation, a yearly award given to America's unsung heroes, ordinary people that do extraordinary things to help others.

He was also inducted into the VFW Hall of Fame for his efforts on behalf of veterans.

When out of the lime-light, Cyrus retreats to his 500-acre farm outside Nashville where he enjoys time with his wife, Tish and six children.

Don't miss Cyrus's one show only at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis, Thursday, July 11. Must be 21 to attend.

Spa at the Bay opens for business

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Relaxing and pampering just got easier as Spa at the Bay has opened its doors for business.

Located on the first floor of the new Bay Tower Hotel at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis, Spa at the Bay offers a full array of services designed to help leave stress behind and beautify the mind and spirit.

According to Spa at the Bay manager Terry Riddell, services range from massages to manicures and are set up for those wanting to spend the day or those with only a few minutes to spare.

Massages include everything from Swedish to deep tissue and include reflexology, which uses pressure points in the hands and feet to alleviate stress; aromatherapy, which incorporates essential oils for stimulation with a light lymphatic massage; and the warm stone massage, which uses a combination of cool and warm basalt stones to extend the massage technique. Spa at the Bay also offers body exfoliation treatments and mineral and salt baths.

The new Spa at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis' Bay Tower Hotel is open for business.

Facials and skin treatments for both men and women are also on the menu of services at Spa at the Bay.

There is a full service hair salon including shampoo, cut, style, set, shaving service for men and waxing for hair removal for both men and women. Manicures and pedicures are also available.

Spa at the Bay offers a fitness center that overlooks the pool and jacuzzi area for guests at the Bay Tower Hotel, Casino Magic Inn, RV Park and marina.

While most spa services are between 25 and 50 minutes, there are packages for a day of pampering. Gift certificates are available.

Spa at the Bay is part of the new Bay Tower Hotel, which opened in late May. Situated on almost 600 pristine acres along the Bay of St. Louis, Casino Magic recently spent $37 million on the 291-room tower hotel which includes Jourdan River Grille, the Cypress Cove Ballroom, Spa at the Bay, Tokens Gift shop and additional property improvements.

The property presently offers a 24-hour casino, live entertainment in the casino lobby, concerts in the 22,000-square-foot entertainment complex, five restaurants, an onsite Arnold Palmer championship golf course, RV park, and a 201-room inn.

Reservations are recommended for spa visits. Call (228) 469-2650 for information or to make reservation.
